To Whom It May Concern:

I am pleased to be writing this letter of recommendation on behalf of Fontana Frazier. It has been a privilege to get to know Fontana throughout her four years of high school as a student in my English classes her freshman and sophomore years. During her time at Badger, Fontana has consistently demonstrated the qualities of a successful student. She is an active member of our school community, an accomplished student, and a positive role model for her peers.

One piece of advice given Badger students is to connect with the school community by getting involved. Fontana took this advice to heart and has participated in numerous extra-curricular activities during her high school career. She has been a member of the golf and dance teams, competed in DECA competitions, and performed in numerous musicals and productions put on by the Fine Arts department. Her involvement and experiences in these various activities allows Fontana to connect with the diverse population of students in our school. As a student mentor, Fontana encourages and inspires freshmen to take advantage of the many opportunities afforded to them in high school. It is important to note that regardless of the number of activities she is involved in at any given time, she puts forth a tremendous amount of effort and enthusiasm into each task she undertakes.

Fontana's positive character traits are also reflected in her academic performance. Balancing various activities and a rigorous schedule can be a difficult combination to manage, but Fontana's work ethic and focus has helped her achieve success. Fontana is not satisfied with "good enough." She will work tirelessly until she is confident that the work she produces reflects her best. I am confident that Fontana will apply these same qualities during her post-secondary education and beyond.

Fontana is simply one of the most compassionate and genuine students I know. She is always respectful and supportive of her teachers and peers, and she always gives consideration to their unique needs and perspectives. Fontana collaborates with classmates to gain a deeper understanding of course concepts. Being thoughtful, charismatic, and creative are all characteristics of Fontana that will serve her well in the future. She isn't afraid to think outside the box, be her own person and stand up for what she believes in. I know Fontana will put forth the same energy and enthusiasm into her college education as she has throughout high school. Fontana will be an exemplary participant and a wonderful role-model for all current and future students.

It is with great pride that I recommend Fontana Frazier for admission into your academic institution.

Respectfully,

Bridget M. Hansen
